About Korea Review of International Studies (KRIS)

Korea Review of International Studies having ISSN: 1226-4741is a double-blind peer-reviewed interdisciplinary journal. Korea Review of International Studies was launched in 2008 and is being published by Global Research Institute. The journal is currently rated as C in the Australian Business Deans Council (ABDC) Quality Journal List. The journal seeks to promote the progress of the social sciences, information technology and the use of social science and information technology knowledge in the enrichment of public understanding and in the development of organizations and public policy. It provides a forum for the exchange of knowledge, experience, insights and ideas about the theory and practice. Its articles deal with topics of concern to public policy scholars worldwide. The journal often publishes articles that cut across disciplines, such as environmental issues, international political economy, regulatory policy and European Union processes. Its peer reviewers come from up to a dozen social science disciplines and countries across three continents, thus ensuring both analytic rigor and accuracy in reference to national and policy context.
